

Group Reflection by Colin Batiste

My perception of the group has been positive. The progress of the group at the start was slow as we were all trying to find our way around things with Microsoft Teams, but once established, communication and collaboration started to pick up between each of the group members. In the short time that the group has been formed, discussions about the tasks have been short but to the point and finding out what each group members strength is has work well in assigned tasks and projects.

I feel that I have performed well for this assessment and that my contributed to the tasks will help this group achieve a high score, and if we were to continue as a group for other tasks and assessments the group itself would only improve.

The one thing I have learned from this group is that everyone works at their own pace, but all are focused on achieving the same goal.